DAILY NEVADA STATE JOURNAL

WASHOE COUNTY OFFICIAL PRESS

G. C. POWNING, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24.

The total vote of the prohibitionists in the recent New York election was seventeen thousand.

The recent suspension of the Burlington (Vt.) Sentinel (Dem.) leaves the State of Vermont without a single Democratic journal.

The Bank of California is succeeding beyond the expectations of its most sanguine friends. The business of this institution is steadily increasing.

JESSE POMEROY demands that his execution shall not be delayed beyond Christmas. He doesn't care about getting anything in his stocking.

The Directors of the Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railroad Company have met and resolved to complete their road right along. The company has lost nothing by the failure of Findley's bank.

The old bell which called together the Virginia Convention in 1775, in Richmond, when Patrick Henry uttered his stirring sentence, "Give me liberty or give me death," is still in use in Martinsville, in that State.

A BILL had just been introduced into the Washington Territory Legislature providing that eggs shall be sold by weight instead of by the dozen, and that twenty-four ounces shall be the standard weight of a dozen of eggs.

STANLEY is in one sense bringing discredit upon his native land, for in the heart of beautiful Africa he has made two discoveries which surpass what we have been wont to boast. He found there a body of fresh water larger than Lake Superior and a man with more wives than Brigham Young has.

Fifty times as much for war as for education—that is the proportion of the expenditures for the two purposes by the Governments of Europe, according to a statement made in Paris at the Peace Conference. For slaughter, $2,000,000,000 annually, and for schools, only $40,000,000. That is the result of eighteen centuries of Christian civilization.

A WASHINGTON correspondent says that while President Grant can converse well he is always willing to let his visitor do the talking, and often sits for half or three quarters of an hour listening to what another has to say without opening his lips. A patient man is our President, but he needs one of those little devices about him which informs bores that men have been talked to death.

WENDELL PHILIPS says that a "man worth $10,000,000 is a danger. His son is only fifty per cent. of that danger, because his brain never grew keen for effort, and if his father leaves him brains enough to keep the wealth he bequeaths to him it is all you can expect; and if his grandchild has brains enough to choose some one else to keep it for him, it is as much as you could expect." Fortunately, if Phillips' theory is well founded, we have but few dangerous men in the country, but there are many who would like to be "a danger."

THE Pope is no longer a temporal Prince, but he still continues to maintain considerable style about him. His household at the Vatican numbers 537 persons. The Pope, Cardinal Antonelli, the Major Domo, Grand Almoner, and other officers, number fourteen; the Pope has one valet and six servants; the police administration includes fifteen persons; the Secretary of State's Department numbers twenty-nine; the secret printing office, eight; the Apostolic Antechamber has a dean, twenty-three couriers, three servants and three orderlies; and the Swiss Guard and the Pontifical Gendarmerie number 200 men.

The schoolmaster who sat down on the "business end" of a pin that had been ingeniously fixed on his chair, rose like a phoenix.

REMOVED.—The Misses Vance are now located on Virginia street, next door to the photograph gallery. They will receive at their dressmaking establishment and make to order in the latest styles, all kinds of plain and fancy sewing.

A Brief History.

A short history of Vice President Wilson, who died last Monday, regretted by a nation he had so faithfully served, is not out of place:

Henry Wilson was born February 18, 1812, and was emphatically a self-made man. His parents were poor, and having been apprenticed at the age of ten years, the whole period of his school attendance until his majority was attained was less than one year. Yet being a great reader, he had managed during that time on Sundays, by firelight and moonlight, to devour the contents of nearly a thousand historical and biographical volumes. He afterwards hired himself to a shoemaker at Natick, Mass., with whom he remained two years, when placing his savings in the hands of a person for safe keeping, he marked out and entered upon a system of academic education. This was cut short by the insolvency of the person who had his money, and in 1838 he returned to Natick and resumed work at his trade. His first entrance in public life was in the Presidential canvass of 1840, during which he made something over forty speeches for General Harrison. He was thereafter thrice returned to the State Legislature, in which he soon became conspicuous as an active and enthusiastic anti-slavery man. In 1845 he made a speech in favor of the adoption by the Legislature of a resolution "declaring the unalterable hostility of Massachusetts to the further extension and longer continuance of slavery in America and her fixed determination to use all legal and constitutional means for its extinction," which was pronounced by the anti-slavery journals to be the fullest and most comprehensive on the slavery question that had yet been made in any legislative body in the country. In 1848 he was a delegate to the Whig National Convention, and in the same year purchased the Boston Republican, daily paper, which he edited for two years. In 1849 he was elected Chairman of the Free Soil party of Massachusetts, which position he held for four years. In 1850 and 1851 he was elected to the State Senate of which he was made President. In 1852 he was made President of the Free Soil National Convention of that party. In the same year he was that party's candidate for Congress in the Eighth Massachusetts District, but was defeated by less than a hundred votes. In 1853 he was the Free Soil candidate for Governor, and was again defeated. In 1855 he was elected to succeed Edward Everett in the United States, and became at once conspicuous as an anti-slavery advocate. In 1856, when Sumner was assailed by Brooks of South Carolina, Mr. Wilson, in a speech to the Senate, denounced the act "as a brutal, murderous and cowardly assault." For this Brooks challenged, but Mr. Wilson refused to accept it, on the ground that dueling was a barbarous practice, rightly branded as a crime by the laws of the country. He, however, significantly added, that he believed in the Divine right of self-defense. Mr. Brooks pursued the subject no further. From that time up to his election, in 1872, as Vice President, Mr. Wilson was one of the most prominent men of the Republican party. In 1861 he was made President of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, a post which the civil war rendered one of unprecedented labor and responsibility. In this capacity he introduced and carried through Congress in the extra session of 1861 the Act to authorize the employment of five hundred thousand volunteers to increase the regular army, and various other important measures. In the regular session of 1861-62, Mr. Wilson introduced the bill to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia, and also that for abolishing the "Black Code." During the war he was a staunch friend and ardent supporter of President Lincoln, advocating every measure looking to the comfort and care of our soldiers, and was always to be found in the right place and at his post of duty.

It is stated that Senator Jones is looking forward to the time when the port of Santa Monica, near the city of Los Angeles, will be a rival of San Francisco, and that he is making a line of railway from this new port through Los Angeles, through the rich valleys of California, thence through the mining districts of Nevada and Utah, and finally connecting with the Union Pacific—making a distance of nearly eight hundred miles, through a country which for paying resources can not be surpassed.

"WATTY" & Co. announce that they have leased the International Restaurant. They will close it for a few days, but will re-open it on Monday next under the name of the "Saddle Rock Oyster and Chop House."

To RENT.—Room to rent. Enquire at Richardson & Drannan's saloon. *

REMOVED.—The Misses Vance are now located on Virginia street, next door to the photograph gallery. They will receive at their dressmaking establishment and make to order in the latest styles, all kinds of plain and fancy sewing. *

WHO IS VICE PRESIDENT?

The death of Henry Wilson has given rise to this question. We reply that an Act of Congress, approved March 1, 1792, provides that:

In cases of a removal, death, resignation or inability both of the President and Vice President of the United States, the President of the Senate pro tem., and in case there is no President of the Senate, then the Speaker of the House of Representatives, for the time being, shall act as President of the United States until the disability be removed or a President shall be elected.

Hon. Thomas W. Ferry, of Michigan, was, at the extra session of the Senate last March, elected President pro tempore of that body, Mr. Carpenter's term having expired. It would, therefore, seem that Mr. Ferry is, by law, empowered to fill the office of Vice President.

OUR TOWN ROUTE.

Mr Chas Thurston will hereafter have charge of the town route of the JOURNAL, delivering the paper to subscribers, and to him alone will they be responsible for payment from and after this date. All persons owing to the present time will please call at this office and settle their accounts. Mr. Thurston will deliver the paper promptly, and no one will have cause for complaint on this score. If you wish the JOURNAL at your place of business or residence give him your order.

PEAVINE NOTES.—"Carlos" writes us the following items from Peavine, under date of the 22d:

Poedunk is "not dead but sleepeth"—sleeping with one eye open, however, for it is liable to wake up at any minute and inundate the whole country with coin.

The Poe Con. Co. are still trying to work their ore. They have a new "rock sharp" at work at it now, and he has succeeded in working it in small quantities. As soon as they can make some alterations in the mill they will commence working on a large scale, and no foolishness this time. There is no doubt here but what the rock can be worked and made to pay. Reno stock holders take notice. They have struck a fine, well defined ledge in the lower level of the mine, some of the ore assaying two thousand dollars per ton. I saw a pound of ore melted and it made a fourteen ounce brick of pure metal—two ounces only of slag! How is that for high? Stock is way up in consequence; a few shares have changed hands at $3 50.

The Cleopatra Company are still at work on their tunnel; it is in nearly 500 feet, with good prospects.

The Golden Fleece Co. have had a run of bad luck in the shape of a large body of water which sluiced the timbers out of their tunnel and raised Ned generally with their works.

The Brooklyn Co. have splendid prospects and propose working all Winter.

We have had a big storm here, lasting eight days. The smoke-stack of the Poe furnace is blown down and several buildings in town received rough usage. Peavine mountain has on its Winter's cap of snow.

Anxiety has not preyed on our damask checks so but what we can relish a little enjoyment yet. We have dances here often, perhaps not as stylish as you have in Reno, New York or Paris, but we can beat you for good, old fashioned fun, frolic and foolamishness.
